THEY SHOT IT OUT.
HE SAVED BRITAIN.
HAVE IT, AND TELL IT.
SALARIES GO DOWN.

By Arthur Brisbane

Americans, as Lord Northcliffe remarked, are a "docile people," and stand almost anything. But a prohibition-gangster incident in New York City ought to arouse them. Three beer gangs in Harlem had a misunderstanding in 107th street and decided to shoot it out.
In the course of events, five young children were shot down. One is dead, two more may die.

Prohibition might be a great blessing, if it would work. But it is a big if.

And meanwhile, with speakeasies
on every block in New York City, gangsters shooting it out and killing children, the people eventually may become impatient.

The dead child, his spine shattered by a bullet that entered the thigh, was 5 years old. His brother, Salvatore Navgali, is in the Fifth avenue hospital. Surgeons have taken five bullets from his body.

Little Michael Cevilaqua, 3 years old, has had two bullets taken from his back. The shooting occurred in a city block occupied largely by Scilians.

All refused to give any evidence,
knowing that to talk would mean death.

Crime, well organized, knows how to protect itself. Our so-called "civilized society" does not know how to protect itself.

Lloyd George, after a dangerous operation, was said yesterday to be near death.

Sixty-eight years old, Lloyd George is a man of unusual strength, despite the great burdens
he has carried for more than 30 years, and his strong will should help him.

If the worst happens, Great Britain will realize a little late what it owes to Lloyd George.

Without Lloyd George and Clemenceau, Germany would have won the big war, and there probably could be a young Hohenzollern sitting on the British throne today.

As chancellor of the British exchequer, Lloyd George provided money for the war. As minister of munitions he supplied munitions
for the war.

And as prime minister he won
the war.

You will succeed if you have what people want, and let them know you have it.

Mr. Tom may, like other able merchants, understand that.

He began, last Saturday, a sale to celebrate the 50th anniversary of what is now the May store in Los Angeles, and did the biggest day's business in all the 50 years, not excepting recent boom years.

In addition to having the goods,
he really advertised them.

President Hoover continues to protest against reduction in wages, particularly among laborers, mechanics and others engaged in industry.

Their payrolls represent the backbone of national prosperity, thousands of millions of dollars a year.

(By Associated Press)

ISTANBUL, TURKEY, July 30.—
Claiming the new world's non-stop distance record, Russell Boardman and John Poland, brought their trans-Atlantic monoplane Cape Cod down at the airport here at 1:20 p.
m. (6:20 a. m., E. S. T.) today.

In the 49 hours and 20 minutes
since they took off from Floyd Bennett field, New York, on Tuesday morning they had been sighted only once. And that was over New Foundland just before they headed across the Atlantic.

Grinning broadly and shaking their own hands above their heads, they climbed out of their sturdy plane while a great crowd, among them most of the members of the American colony cheered.

Ambassador Joseph C. Crew gave them a hand out of the cockpit and introduced them to the governor of Istanbul. A squad of Turkish police presented arms during the brief ceremony.

"We are very happy at having accomplished our purpose of beating the world's non-stop record," Boardman told the Associated Press correspondent, "it was a fine trip."

CROYDON, ENG., July 30.—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., who landed their trans-Atlantic monoplane in Wales last night and came on here this morning, took off
for Moscow, their original objective,
at 2:13 p. m. today (8:13 a. m., E. S. T.).

The take-off was nearly six hours
after their arrival from Wales.
They expect to make Berlin within four or five hours, stop there to refuel, and continue to Moscow, if the weather is good, arriving there sometime early Friday morning.

GROWERS MERGE
FOR CROP SALES

Producers In Salem Area
Form Market Outlet
To Sell Produce

Plans for the establishment of a produce growers market in Salem,
through which agriculturists hope to provide a new outlet to take care of large crop production, were announced today by L. E. Lora of Franklin street.

Others interested in the project
are Raymond Knapp of Greenford; Fawcett's greenhouse, Ellsworth rd.; Bonsall and DeRhodes, Ellsworth
rd.; William Oliphant, Winona.

Lora and the other members of the group propose to set up their market in the vacant lot adjoining the Salem Motor company building.

The market, it is said, would be in operation on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday morning.

Each producer, under present arrangements, would occupy his own stand, handling his own goods. However, in the event that a producer is unable to be present, arrangements will be made whereby Lora or another member of the group will handle his produce.

If plans work out satisfactorily,
Lora said today, the market will be opened this week.

Chicagoan Calls Capone

The popular three-act comedy drama, "Her Husband's Wife," by A. E. Thomas, will be the attraction at Redpath chautauqua at Columbia school grounds tonight.

"Her Husband's Wife" presents
an all-star cast with Lambert Kaiman and Forrest Lewis enacting leading male roles while Phyllis Mackaye and Ruth Stone carry starring feminine characterizations. The play starts at 8 p. m.

Adalin Wright Macauley, past president of the American Legion auxiliary and past honorary president of Fidae auxiliary, is scheduled to speak this afternoon. She will discuss the subject, "Are Kings and Queens Human?"

Gangster terrorism was discussed last night at the chautauqua in an address by C. Ray Hansen, former assistant prosecuting attorney and criminal investigator in Chicago.
Gangland warfare will continue and may become even worse until the people themselves take a hand and force out of politics corrupt hotheaders and assure themselves of honest rule, Hansen stated.

DAMASCUS, July 30.—Wilbur
Knight, 14, accidentally shot himself through the left foot about 3:30
p. m. Wednesday at the MacRae pasture, at the edge of the village.
Wilbur and Clifford Moncrief were loading a small rifle to shoot sparrows when the accident occurred. The rifle went off unexpectedly and the bullet went through Wilbur's foot and came out on the other side.

Clifford took the injured boy to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knight. He was attended by a Salem physician.

filed $10,000 damage action in common pleas court, Lisbon, against Floyd Chappell, 1107 Maple st., as a result of injuries he sustained when he was a passenger in a car driven by Chappell on Sept. 28, 1929.
Chappell was driving on the Al-

driven off the road and crashed to the petition, and Ryser was in-

BERLIN, July 30.—Home from a six day cruise into the Arctic, the Graf Zeppelin landed at Tempelhof

(12:38 p. m., E. S. T.)

She had circled over the field eighteen minutes earlier, swung about for a turn over Berlin, then flew to the airfield.

The crowd of thousands cheered wildly as she nosed downward. The landing crew tugged at the lines and slowly and great ship was hailed to the ground as a band burst into the national anthem.

The 46 men aboard, among them
a number of scientists, including two Americans, prepared to Debarck immediately. They had not set foot on land since the Graf stopped at Leningrad on the way to the north.

LABOR WILL AID
WAGE SITUATION

Federation Plans Program to Eliminate Suffering Among Jobless

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, July 30.—Organized labor has stepped into the labor situation in an effort to prevent the impact of reduced industrial earnings from falling with undue weight upon the shoulders of the employee-consumer.

Arrange Program
The American Federation of Labor today came forward with a program it believes would prevent suffering next winter due to unemployment. This program calls for:

- 1. Shortening of work hours to distribute employment.
- 2. Employment guarantees;
promises from management that those now employed will be held through the winter so that the fear of unemployment which tends to encourage hoarding could be dissipated.
- 3. Creation of more work, public and private, even chores around homes.
- 4. Collection of funds for relief,
both municipal and private.

The federation's proposal for a shorter work week drew favorable comment from William N. Doak, secretary of labor. He said he favored a five-day week and six-hour day and said the shorter work period "may be the solution" of the unemployment difficulty. But the labor department can do nothing about the situation, Doak added.

The federation made no reference to the question of reducing wages against which the White House is continuing its warfare.
In proposing its program, the federation declared unemployment is "becoming more critical" despite a seasonal improvement due to the harvest season.

"We must look forward to a worse unemployment problem next winter than last," the federation stated.

TOTS IN 'LITTLE RED SCHOOLS' TO LOSE ONE MONTH

8-Month Terms Scheduled In Four Townships of County

Teachers in four Columbiana county townships will be given contracts for only eight months during 1931-32 school term as a result of reductions made by the state in appropriations for Ohio school work, H. C. Leonard of Lisbon, county superintendent of schools,
announced today.

Thirty-one teachers in St. Clair, Middleton, Yellow Creek and Wayne townships will be affected. Leonard said when allowances made by the state for financial aid in the four districts will be decreased at least 7 per cent.

Salaries will not be reduced, B. O.
Skinner, state director of education, said today but contracts will be shortened from the usual nine month term to eight months in order to conserve funds. The contracts are to be so worded, Skinner informed school heads, as to provide for more than eight months of school if funds are available.

Columbiana county, one of 66
Ohio counties receiving state aid, benefited by $4,882 in funds received from the Ohio department last year, Leonard said. Schools in Carroll county were apportioned $17,105 while Jefferson county received $25,639.

Salem public schools will not be affected, Albert Hayes, board of education clerk, announced, because this city has never filed a request for state aid. The financial condition of the educational system
here, has been such, the clerk stated that no aid from the state has been necessary.

Twenty-eight of the county's remaining "little red" school buildings are maintained in the four townships, Middleton, Yellow Creek, Wayne and St. Clair, Leonard explained. St. Clair has seven one-room and one two-room buildings,
Middleton, has the same number.
Yellow Creek has five one-room and one two-room and Wayne township has six one-room buildings.
One teacher is required for each one-room building and two for the two-room structures.

Would Cut Costs
Skinner said today he will file no
petition with the county boards of education to reduce operating expenses and transportation of pupils to the shorter term basis, a saving of 11 per cent being anticipated under his new plan.

He also plans to place into effect, this year, a new system
through which it is hoped the level of teachers in rural schools will be raised to a high degree. In all state aid districts, Skinner ruled,
beginning teachers in elementary grades must have at least two years of training beyond high school work. High school teachers must have at least four years of training.
No elementary teachers may be

From Baltimore

From a historical review of Ohio Yearly meeting it was learned that this meeting was set off from Baltimore Yearly meeting of Friends in 1813. The following minute was read at Short Creek, Aug. 14, 1813:
"At Ohio Yearly meeting for the state of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Virginia." This first session was attended by about 2,000 Friends, according to records.

The membership consisted of 1700
families, each of which at a conservative estimate, numbered five,
making a total of nearly 5,800.

This new yearly meeting was made up of five quarterly meetings,
all of which except one was in Ohio.
Redstone, the oldest of the group,
was in Pennsylvania and has for many years been discontinued. The Redstone yearly meeting and from it was organized many other meetings,

After wandering over the hills

eleven hours during which time
posses hunted for him, Caldwell Brown, Jr., 20, was found in a farm house at Frazeysburg, near here, this afternoon.

ZANESVILLE, O., July 30.— County authorities, Boy Scouts and citizens here scoured the county
today in search of Caldwell Brown, Jr., 20, missing since his automobile overturned on a road near here
shortly after midnight.

Brown, son of C. H. Brown, manager of several theaters in Zanesville, was driving with five other young people when his car skidded and overturned. All of his companions were injured, one of them critically.

When rescuers arrived, young Brown asked that his companions be taken to a hospital and said he would stay and watch the car. He has not been seen since, and persons who saw him recalled that he appeared somewhat dazed, but said he was not badly hurt.

The injured were Miss Virginia
Arnold, Boston, Mass., whose condition was critical; Lee Wagner, 25,
probably skull fracture; Dan Van Voorhis, 19, Washington, D. C., son of Col. and Mrs. Van Voorhis,

Ford Is 68 Today;
Just Another Day
To Auto Maker

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, July 30.—Time, like fortune, has been kind to Henry Ford.

So said his friends today as the motor magnate observed his 68th birthday. Ford did not "Celebrate" his birthday, for it was "just another day" to him.
Apparently in the best of health and spirits, he spent most of the day in the gardens of his estate, "Fairlane," at Dearborn, or in the engineering laboratory of his plant, "just across the road."

Messages of greeting came to Mr. Ford from various parts of the world. They came from Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, from Harvey S. Firestone, tire manufacturer, and from scores of others. Edison and Firestone are Ford's closest friends.

The friends who said that time had been kind to Henry Ford found plenty of substantiation in the automobile maker's appearance. True, his face is heavily lined but it always seems to have been so. The slender, wiry figure, straight carriage, alert footstep and energetic movement, and the twinkle that seemingly never leaves his eyes, told of excellent health and spirits.

At the moment much of the intense interest Ford devoted to everything he undertakes is being directed toward the de-

Stark county, of $40,000 in currency and bonds today. Two of the men were armed with pistols and the other carried a machine gun.

George Bixler, cashier, Miss Odessa Moser, a bookkeeper, and William Youngman, a customer, were lined against the side of the bank with their faces to the wall
while the robbers looted the cash-

Deposit Boxes Untouched

Officials said that none of the safety deposit boxes had been opened. Included in the loot was the money brought in by the bank to cash payroll checks for the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad shops and offices at Brewster.

Bixler, Miss Moser and Youngman,
were in bank when the three men entered. Bixler had just opened the vaults and the three people were lined up against the wall.

Two of the bandits, armed with pistols, entered the cashier's cage, went to the vault and took all the money and bonds in sight while the third man, armed with a machine gun, covered the three lined up against the wall.

AN EXCELLENT CHOICE

In the selection of Earl S. Kerr of Canton for superintendent of the Salem public schools, the board of education displayed excellent judgment, for Mr. Kerr is undoubtedly the most outstanding educator among the 60 who applied for the position. It was no mean task that confronted the board members, and to their credit it must be said that they investigated the applicants thoroughly and fairly, working diligently at the job until they were satisfied that their choice was the best of those available.

Mr. Kerr's training, his experience, his ability as an executive and his qualities of leadership and tact combine to equip him well for the problems that will confront him in the administration of the public school system in Salem. His recommendations come from his present employers, as well as former employers and those who had opportunity to observe his work in other fields.

From the president of the Canton board of education comes this statement: "He is unquestionably an educator of outstanding ability and both energetic and progressive. I consider him especially capable in executive school administration. He is a gentleman of exceptionally fine personality." Those in Salem who have met him only since he became an applicant are willing to attest to the final statement.

The assistant superintendent at Martins Ferry, where Mr. Kerr served three years as superintendent, has this to say about him:

"With his teaching staff he was fair, open-minded and kindly, drawing upon his own experience as a teacher for helpful suggestions and creating a friendly stimulating atmosphere. He stood behind his teachers in any difficulty that arose but insisted upon the child's welfare as the primary consideration of the schools. As an administrator he displayed excellent judgment, possessing the ability to analyze situations and to look ahead so as to prevent trouble. His qualities of leadership, of tact in dealing with teachers, pupils, and patrons so as to win their confidence and friendship, his broad outlook upon life as well as upon educational problems, his progressive ideas, always tempered by a sane consideration of existing conditions—all combine to make him an especially successful superintendent."

These recommendations reveal qualifications which all superintendents and prospective superintendents do not possess, but should possess if they are to build confidence in the schools and their leaders sufficiently far-reaching to extend to every patron of those schools. Having attained this goal in Canton, where he has been charged with the detailed executive administration of the public schools, and in Martins Ferry, where he did an excellent job of solving a difficult school problem, it cannot be amiss to expect that he will handle the situation in Salem in a highly satisfactory manner.

The News is pleased to commend the board of education for the judgment shown in selecting a capable superintendent, and it here-with extends to Mr. Kerr a hearty welcome to Salem, with the assurance of any cooperation which may serve as an aid in establishing a successful administration.

POWER OF INDIGNATION

There could be no more maddening incident revealing gangster brutality than the killing of an innocent child and the shooting of four others by beer feudists in a New York tenement district Tuesday night. It actually is comforting to know that, had the car from which the shots were fired been stopped, the infuriated residents of the district probably would have torn the hoodlums to bits.

New York is out to get the gangsters and, if it does, some crooked lawyer will have to extend himself to the utmost to save them from the heaviest penalty. The cards are stacked; though they had no intention of shooting the children playing in front of their intended victim, they did and that's the beginning and end of that. The intended victim, unfortunately, was not killed. Various kings, feudal lords, slave drivers—oppressors of all stations and degrees of meanness—have discovered to their sorrow that there is an unearthly power of indignation among the people when they are aroused to action. How long it will be until the mentally-warped hoodlum makes himself so utterly obnoxious that society will mass its strength to exterminate him? Every time an innocent person is slain the time grows shorter. When an innocent child is shot down without change, when four others are wounded, when a neighborhood is imperiled—all to settle a gutter dispute between gangsters—there is reason to hope that the time may not be far off.

THE WORLD COURT AT WORK
Although it has decided scores of cases since its origin in 1921 the Permanent Court of International Justice has come into wider prominence this week with the hearings on the question of the Austro-German Customs union. No case ever brought before the court has had the vast implications for the future of Europe that are implicit in this project of a Teutonic commercial merger.

German and Austrian lawyers have completed their defense of the right of Austria to unite with Germany for purposes of levying a single tariff. French, Italian, Belgian and Czechoslovakian lawyers are busy with their opposition to the project. The whole controversy has been kept on the plane of a legal question and no petty political recriminations have entered.

This in itself marks an important advance in international relations. Even two decades ago such a momentous question as this would have been threshed over in the channels of diplomacy, made a political football and decided finally either by diplomatic pressure or by resort to war. Today the matter, which essentially is a legal question, is being determined in a court of law.

To be sure, the opinion of the court will be advisory and will have to be accepted by the council of the League of Nations before it is effective. But the prestige of the court should be enough, backed by the public opinion of the world, to make the settlement final. Even the most pessimistic observers are obliged to admit that there are some signs of progress in the conduct of foreign affairs—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 31
While there is augury for some benefits through letters, writings, contracts or publications on this day generally the lunar aspects are not of a promising nature. There is sign of craft, duplicity, secret attacks or sinister misrepresentation or ill-will, with annoyance, postponements and frustration.
Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which much precaution and alertness against fraud, misrepresentation, subtle understanding and sinister attack may avert adverse conditions. With care there is prospect of a fairly fortunate agreement or contract, with possible benefits from letters, writings or publications. Depressed and moody mental attitudes should be shunned. A child born on this day may be disposed to be sulky, morose, self-effacing and inclined to attain its ends by subtlety, craft and expediency. It should have an optimistic and wholesome viewpoint instilled early in life.

NEW YORK Day by Day

by O.O. McIntyre

PARIS, July 30. — Bob Brinkhoff, the blonde New York illustrator, blew into town today on the last lap of a swing around the globe, having set off from Vancouver in March. Since I saw him he has watched geishas in Japan, sipped tea along Bubbling Well Road in Shanghai, talked to Gandhi and slept in Formosa camphor trees.

Cutting across Place Victor Hugo I espied his familiar figure, let go a full-throated Comanche whoop, sailed my pearl gray chapeau skyward and screamed: "Hey, Brink!" He dropped a suit case, criss-crossed with flamboyant labels, and we snapped into a wait on the ancient cobblestones.

Bob is a friend of long standing. Along with H. T. Webster and Ray Rohn, we came to New York together, pitching camp in a walk-up apartment far up in the 140's. All of us had slaved side by side for several years in the editorial rooms of the Cincinnati Post.

In those first days in the metropolis we were gay young buccaners on the journalistic high seas. Money was so coy and reluctant that we often cut each other's hair and there were bleak days when we pus-sy-footed from our flat via the fire escape to avoid a rather unsentimental landlord.

After our chance meeting, I took him around to Willis Morgan's pork chop emporium and filled him to his outstanding ears with fried chicken, corn fritters and yellow ice cream à la Americaine. My hospitality was top notch save neglecting Taddition. One forgets in the hurry of travel.

Bob and I have explored Paris before together, even to a skiff ride through the sewers, and as he was naturally fed up on "rubber-necking" we drifted to a sidewalk table up an obscure side street and gabbed ourselves out. Then we paid a surprise visit to Hattie Bell Johnston in her rue Eugene Flachat domicile.

She is the widow of the beloved William Johnston, author, former Sunday editor of the New York World and intimate of O. Henry. For many years Hattie Bell and Bill Johnston's 91st street home was the "Charles and Mary Lamb's" of the literati. Few writers there are who have not been warmed by their hospitality.

I was recalling to Mrs. Johnston over the tea cups this late afternoon the privilege of celebrity contacts I—a struggling nobody they so graciously welcomed—enjoyed at their festive board. It was there I first met E. Phillips Oppenheim, Charles and Kathleen Norris, Fannie Hurst, Isaac Maroosson, Willem Van Loon, Peter Kyne, Arthur Somers Roche, Herb Roth, Carolyn Wells, Donna Byrne, Ralph Barton, Neysa McMein, Maclyn Arbuckle and innumerable others, whose names for the moment escape me but who made their marks.

Poor old Maxims, perhaps one of the best known restaurants to give up the struggle. Last evening at the lively homecoming hour I saw but a single customer sitting in the shadow of its red front. Four sidewalk waiters stood gloomily at their posts. On a stool at the circular bar a few steps inside sat a lone and rather tarnished coccotte, puffing a cigarette and reading the Pri Midi. I invited her to join me in an aperitif, which she declined.

Springfield, who formerly lived near this city, called on old friends here Saturday enroute to Boston.

Brockton, Mass.—Thirty-five firemen were injured in fighting fire here Sunday which destroyed several buildings. The fire was the worst in the history of the town. Harold Williams, East Fourth st., has returned from East Liverpool, where he spent his vacation, and on Monday resumed his duties at Ealy's shoe store.

The new switchboard at the Bell telephone exchange has been placed in use.

In a one-sided contest played at Centennial park Sunday afternoon the Silver team defeated the Sharpshooter team by the score of 12 to 2.

Lisbon—A Friends meeting was held in the City hall Sunday afternoon. People from Salem, Winona and New Middleton attended. Cyrus Cooper, Esther Fowler and Elisha B. Steer were speakers.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Safest Way to Reduce

A fat child is often the subject of much unnecessary ridicule and abuse. The fear that "no one loves a fat man," is grossly exaggerated. Most stout persons I have encountered have much more winning and pleasing personalities than many of their lean brothers.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

But as these individuals grow older, they are likely to become quite sensitive about their stoutness. It is not surprising, I am sure, that they are willing to resort to almost any method that has in it the hope of fewer pounds of weight.

Recently, there has been great carelessness in the use of thyroid extract. It is true that under some circumstances thyroid gland products cause a marked reduction in weight. But the use of such drugs materially increases the heat production of the body. This places an undesirable strain on the heart and blood vessels.

At a recent gathering of the American College of Physicians, a warning was issued against the unwise treatment of obesity by thyroid products. At this meeting of eminent physicians, it was decided that stout people can safely and just as easily reduce by proper dieting.

The general public mind is warned against the use of this medicine as a quick means of reducing. Whatever loss of weight the body undergoes should be brought about in a gradual manner. Sudden and rapid loss of poundage is decidedly detrimental. Often great harm is accomplished by this undesirable method of reducing.

The excessive eating of sweets and pastries and of munching between meals must be avoided. Likewise, those who are overweight are not encouraged to go on a rigid fasting diet. In many respects, this is just as harmful as the administration of thyroid.

By a decrease in the amount of food consumed there is reduction in the weight without harm or strain. This results in less heat production. On such a diet the heavy person tires out less easily and is fully satisfied with his food. His comfortable feeling encourages him to persist in his sane efforts to reduce.

Reduction in weight by means of proper eating is a slow process, but it is the safest. It can only be accomplished by persistence and care. It may take a considerable time, but you will be assured of maintaining reduced weight if you persist in this method.

WORKERS NAMED FOR OHIO MEET

meeting there seemed to be an almost universal desire that the children should have an opportunity for "guarded Christian education," and as each community built its meetinghouse, there appeared nearby a plain schoolhouse, with a friend for teacher. This condition no longer exists.

In 1833-34 there were in one quarterly meeting about 30 schools under the care of committees appointed by the various meetings. Now there are none.

Establish Missions
In early years of the Ohio yearly meeting, Friends were much interested in the North American Indians and in connection with Indiana established missions among them, when they were taught the common branches in education and more especially the truths of the Bible.

Seven quarterly meetings comprised Ohio Yearly meeting in 1930 with a membership of 5411, including members in China and India, where the yearly meeting supports missions. In these two missions are 16 workers. At present there are nine in the homeland. Outside of Ohio there is one quarterly meeting at Adrian, Mich., one at Newport News, Va. Besides these there are meetings in North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Iowa.

The first yearly meeting was held in Damascus in 1866 when the yearly meeting house was about half as large as it is now. About 1868 it was enlarged to the present proportions.

It is estimated by one of the officials of the Yearly meeting that the average attendance is 600. The house has a seating capacity of 800 and for the evening sessions it is usually filled.

Mussolini is their father, it was his 48th birthday anniversary and it is the birthday custom in Italy to tweak the ear once for each year of life.

How free from "tweaking" Mussolini's career has been since he marched on Rome and took control of Italy's government.

A great war makes all men feel unsure, uncertain, when one steps out, knowing exactly what he wants, putting his will ahead of organized government. He succeeds, at least for awhile. Stalin proves it in Russia, Kemal in Turkey, Mussolini in Italy.

Rumors that the bank of England has been trying to borrow $100,000,000 from the Banque De France annoy the British government.

The rumors are called "an attempt to undermine the British reputation in the world."

However, in the war, when money really was hard to get, Britain lent not millions but billions to France and the other allies.

For France to lend $100,000,000 to England now would seem reasonable, but not profitable.

Endurance Driver Will Reach Half-Way Station Today

Fred "Dare Devil" Mathews, Jr. was scheduled to reach the half-way mark in his attempted 100-hour endurance drive at 3 p. m. today, passing his 45th hour of steady operation of the new free wheeling Plymouth automobile, furnished by W. L. Coy and company, at noon.

Mathews showed only slight effects of the steady grind, but is scheduled to undergo medical examination tonight. His father, Fred Mathews, Sr., claimant to the world endurance record of 145 hours consistent driving, is accompanying his son on part of the drive.

Ends Trip Saturday
The youth will, if successful, complete the drive at 7 p. m. Saturday.

Arrangements are being made today by the Sarbin Furniture company to provide rest at the close of the trip. A new bed, equipped with Green Point mattress and springs,

STOCK MARKET TRADING DULL

Steel Drops to 83 3/4; Bethlehem Sags Point To New Low

NEW YORK, July 30.—Selling of the rails and further pressure against the steel shares gave the stock market a heavy tone today, but prices improved when trading became very dull on the decline. U. S. steel dropped a point to 83 3/4 before making a full recovery. Bethlehem, awaiting the directors' dividend action after the close, likewise sagged a point, touching a record low for the present shares, and then erased its loss. Declines of 1 to 1 3/4 in American Telephone, American Tobacco "B", Eastman, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit and Borden were reduced. Chrysler was up a point. Nickel Plate tumbled 10 in anticipation of unfavorable dividend action. Union Pacific lost 3 and Atchison and Southern Railway 2. New York Central sagged 1 1/2. Call money renewed at 1 1/2 per cent.

COMEDY-DRAMA ON AT REDPATH

Chicagoan Calls Capone "Big Sap"; Says Lingle was "Crook"

He said, in part: "Al Capone has no regard whatever for law. I have mentioned the laws he breaks to him on certain occasions but he only grunts that he doesn't consider the law as a factor at all. The liquor business in his mind is a legitimate and honorable profession. His gang grosses about $75,000,000 a year—and this is a conservative estimate. There will be a mad scramble for Capone's place at his death and ruthless warfare will begin."

Capone's success in his business lies to a great extent in his staff of lieutenants and co-workers. Jack Guzik, considered by many the brains of Capone's gang, has co-operated with Capone a number of years.

Jake Lingle Episode
Asked about the Jake Lingle episode, Mr. Hansen believes that Leo Brothers, recently sentenced to 14 years for his murder, was not the one who placed the snub-nosed pistol to the back of Lingle's head and fired a bullet into his brain at Randolph street tunnel under Michigan boulevard. "Brothers was at the scene but I don't believe he was the man," he said.

"Lingle was a crook and a fixer—not a reporter," he said. "Once at a gathering when I was in a group of gangsters and had a threat made against my life by one of them, Lingle was present but he didn't consider printing anything like that at all. He was playing ball with them," Hansen stated.

here this morning while Pangborn caught up on his sleep. Then they had luncheon together, with Dixon Beardman, Herndon's stepfather, as their guest.

After luncheon they posed for the movie men and were off. The red plane circled the field once and darted eastward.

Only about 300 gallons of gasoline was taken aboard here at Croydon—just enough to reach Berlin, where the fliers expected to land this afternoon, refuel and go on to Moscow. Croydon, they said, was too small for a take-off with a heavy load of fuel.

"The forced landing near Cardigan," Pangborn declared, "cost us just half a day. There was a bare chance of our completing the 'round the world flight in just six days until that happened but now we will be somewhat longer. However, we'll beat the Post-Gazette record."

LISBON, July 30.—The new section of the Wellsville-Salineville road in Yellow Creek township will be opened to traffic Sunday morning, it was announced today by County Survey Lloyd C. Kirk, but those who use the road will do so at their own risk.

EVIDENCE ASKED AS "AL" CAPONE GOES TO COURT

Government and Defense
Called In by Judge
Wilkinson

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 30—Government and defense were ordered by Judge James H. Wilkinson today to present their evidence in the prohibition and income tax cases against "Scarface" Alphonse Capone at a hearing beginning at 2 p. m.

"Through With Rackets"
CHICAGO, July 30—Alphonse Capone, was quoted by the Chicago Herald and Examiner today as saying he is through with the rackets forever.

On the eve of his appearance today in federal court for his sentence on his plea of guilty to income tax evasion and conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, the chief of gang chiefs, said he would return to Chicago when he completes his term in Leavenworth prison, and enter some legitimate business.

Capone gave credit to the Secret Six, the crime fighting organization of the association of commerce, for his downfall.

"The Secret Six," he said, "has licked the rackets. They've licked me. They've made it so there's no money in the game any more. Most of the fellows who've been working with me realize this as well as I do. That's why I think they'll do the same as I'm going to do when I come back from Leavenworth—go into honest business."

Torrio Also Out
Johnny Torrio has been mentioned in the speculation as to the successor to Capone, and when asked about this he laughed. "Torrio feels like I do," he said. "Why he wouldn't get back into the racket for a million dollars. Torrio got out and I'm getting out—with the help of the United States government."

"I have pleaded guilty and I am going to accept whatever punishment is given without contesting the government's charges or causing the government to spend a lot of money in expensive trials."

"I want the people to realize that in my few adult years (Capone is 32) it would have been utterly impossible for me to have done all the things that have been credited to me. Everybody in any legitimate business has been using my name, x x x violating the prohibition law and running some gambling places make up the only so-called crimes I have ever committed."

Old Grid Star Dies

COLUMBUS, July 30.—John Neser, 55, assistant foreman in the Pennsylvania Railroad Boiler shops here, died in a hospital.

He played football with the Massillon Tigers, in 1903-04, when they were recognized as the world's professional champions.

Reach Ore Peak

CLEVELAND, July 30.—Reporting a speeding up of movement of bituminous coal from Lake Erie docks, the Ore & Coal Exchange said the total of 1,237,685 tons of fuel adm cargo dumped last week marked the high spot of this season's shipments.

SEATTLE—Six battleships, several destroyers and auxiliary vessels and approximately 11,000 sailors will be here by Aug. 7, prepared to open Seattle's annual fleet week, Aug. 10.

It was estimated that the fleet would bring approximately $5,000 daily to Seattle merchants handling food and fresh vegetables.

Ferrell Hurls Cleveland To Shutout Victory Over Senators

THE DAY In Sports

ENGLISH STARS THREATEN YOUNGSTERS LOOK GOOD

THE LAST DAVIS CUP score of the 1931 season has been written in the books, and while the French won once more, results of this year's championship indicate a new deal in 1932.

The new deal, one believes, will result in one of two nations succeeding France as the champion next year. These nations are Great Britain and the United States.

Both Britain and the U. S. can boast of young stars already tried under the intense fire of Davis cup competition, and fully capable of further development. And France, the other currently dominant tennis nation, has a set of fading stars. To be sure, Henri Cochet, idol of French tennis, is not as yet definitely through, but his playing days, like those of his contemporaries, are numbered, and it may be that he has by now played his last victorious Davis cup tennis.

Jean Borotra, the other important French player, has seen his best days. He lost both of his matches of the 1931 challenge round, and only the victories of Cochet in singles and with Jacques Brugnon in doubles enabled the Basque to be a member of the winning side.

British tennis enthusiasts are divided in their admiration of two young men. Of course they admire both, but whether the greater is H. Wilfred ("Bunny") Austin or Frederick J. Perry is something on which there is little agreement. That their abilities are of similar value is indicated in the fact that each beat Borotra and that each was defeated, but only after earnest struggles, by Cochet.

The British, too, are well fortified for play in Davis cup doubles. Perry and George Patrick Hughes form a sterling doubles combination. This tandem was not used this year, for the British decided to give Perry a day of rest, substituting Charles Kingley as partner for Hughes.

The United States hopes are certain to ride once again on the play of Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood in the singles, and on John Van Ryn and George Martin Lott in doubles. They are the young men who have been seasoned by actual competition.

Lots of things can happen between now and the day on which the 1932 Davis Cup Championship is determined, but it's a fairly certain wager that England and the United States will meet in the interzone final, with the winner meeting—and beating—France in the challenge round.

Convinced that the Mullins Foreman's club team will not be the champion of the second half in the Salem Softball league, opposing mushballers are concentrating a strong attack for games booked next week, the third of the second half schedule. The Salem China company, Colonial Billiards, United Cigars and Ohio Edison are leaders in the fight to dislodge Mullins from first place.

The Cigars, placed in the field by C. S. Chisholm, have furnished plenty of surprises for fans in the present race while the Pottery clashes with the Colonials today in a battle for second place. The Billiards won three important contests this half but dropped two, one to the Hardware and the other to the Ohio Edison.

The Kiwanis club, lacking two of its leading players, M. Schuller and Cecil Scullion, lost to the Ohio Edison Tuesday and doesn't appear to be in the titular race. The Hardware also appeared eliminated when the Cigars defeated them the same night but this game will probably be played over again because of a protest lodged by Twing Seeds, Hardware manager.

There appears little doubt but that Seeds has plenty of basis for protest and the board of arbitration is expected to meet Monday at the Memorial building to act on it. Considering the fact that this is but the second protest of the season there is every reason to insist that the 1931 mushball league is among the best governed and finest operated in the city's history.

A recent mail delivered to the St. Louis Cardinals Milt Simpson's horseshoe. He has selected them as this year's champions.

VOSMIK'S HOMER TALLIES 3 RUNS IN FIRST FRAME

Marberry Shelled From Mound; Phillies Win From Cubs, 4-0

GIANTS COP SECOND PLACE IN NATIONAL

Ed Brandt Allows Only Five Hits As Cards Lose to Braves

Hitting Fred Madberry, Washington slab ace, for five runs in four innings, the Cleveland Indians, with Wesley Ferrell on the mound, defeated the Senators, 6-0, at Washington Wednesday.

Ferrell allowed ten hits, walked five and hurled a spasmodic game, only to bear down with men on bases with the result that the home team had 15 stranded on the sacks. The tribe played errorless ball back of their ace.

Vosmik Hits Homer
Jole Vosmik, Cleveland's scintillating 26-year-old, was the big star in Ferrell's victory, clouting a home run in the first with Burnett and Morgan on base.

The rivalry between the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, which is just about as old as the game, has raised its head once more in the 1931 National league race. But this year the teams are not battling each other for the pennant and there seems to be little chance that either will overtake St. Louis.

In the past few weeks, the Giants and Cubs have changed positions every few days, first one slipping a trifle ahead and then the other catching up. The Giants are on top today, holding second place by the margin of a half-game by virtue of their 5-4 triumph over Pittsburgh yesterday and Chicago's 4-0 shutout at the hands of the Phillies.

Grantham's Errors Help
It took a real struggle to put the Giants into second place. Despite three runs in the first inning, the gift of George Grantham, whose errors paved the way for the rally, New York barely lasted as Grantham and Ed Phillips nicked Bill Waiked for home runs. The Cubs could make no headway at all against Ray Benge's hurling and got only five scattered hits.

The Cardinals also ran into a five-hit shutout with Ed Brandt doing the hurling to give the Boston Braves a 3 to 0 victory. It did not, however, seriously damage the Cardinals' pennant hopes for they held an eight game lead over the Giants. The Brooklyn Robins, slipping slowly out of the race, ran into another setback at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds. They lost a 2 to 1 decision as Silas Johnson, Cincinnati ace, outpitched Babe Phelps.

Fine pitching by Roy Mahaffey and Jimmy Fox's 20th home run combined to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 4 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns and to increase their margin in the American league pennant chase to 12 games.

Ruth Hits For Circuit
Babe Ruth lined his 28th homer of the season into the right field bleachers at the Yankee stadium as the feature of New York's 10 to 4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers divided their closing double header. Boston won the first game 5 to 4 in ten innings as Earl Webb's only hit drove in the winning run. Detroit attacked Lloyd Kline in the early innings of the second and stood off the Red Sox' late rallies to win 8 to 6.

Balky Nag Atones With Mark

Here's the start and finish of one horse's race, which makes this an unusual picture, indeed. Zymri, three-year-old, didn't even wait to get going like good spill-horses do, but reared high at the very start of the sulky meet in Lewiston, Maine. Note the wire barrier still taut. The sulky meet in Lewiston, Maine, was trampled almost to death, but desiring to atone for all this, Zymri quieted down and was hitched to a new sulky to set a record for the track.

ALL-STARS DROP 6-3 DECISION TO ALLIANCE TEAM

Three Errors, Collision Of Players Disastrous To Salem Outfit

The Alliance Energines, one of Stark county's leading softball combinations, won the second of a three-game series from the V. L. Battin All-Stars, scoring a 6-3 triumph in a thrilling encounter at Centennial park field Wednesday.

Large Crowd Present
One of the largest crowds of the season—more than 500 fans—gathered for the contest. George Early of Salem and Mike Thomas, the invaders' Negro slab artist, engaging in a hard-fought mound duel. Three errors coming at inopportune moments played the leading role in the All-Stars' defeat.

Salem stepped into an early lead, scoring one run in each of the first and second innings, but Alliance knotted the count in the third. With two on and two out in the third Hannay drove a hard line smash into right center, Twing Seeds and Mike Sattick, Salem outfielders, attempting to field the ball.

Players Collide
Seeds got under the fly but the two outfielders collided, forcing the ball from his hands and knocking both prostrate. Both runners scored.

Two errors and a single tallied three runs for the visitors in the fourth while Sattick's homer in the sixth was the only additional marker the All-Stars could garner off Thomas' offerings.

Fielding of Joe Kelley at second and Frank Scullion were features. Ted Scott played fine ball at first base for the hometowners. The two teams clash in the third game of the series at Alliance next Wednesday. Summary:

Akron Star Wins Over Salem Runners In Canton Carnival

SPORTS AKRON
(By Brush-Moore Leased Wire)
CANTON, O., July 30.—Cy Woolcock, junior at Akron university, spotted Salem's chances of winning both the mile and half-mile events on the track program of the Kiwanis Athletic carnival here Wednesday night.

Woolcock finished 10 yards ahead of Harold Walker in the mile, negotiating the distance in the nose too excellent time of 4:48.5, and then came back a half hour later to edge out Hortsman in the 880 in 2:05.4.

Only a great spurt enabled Walker to grab the runner-up position in the longer race, as he was given plenty of competition by H. M. White and H. L. White, both of Canton, who finished third and fourth respectively.

Hortsman forced Woolcock right down to the tape in the half mile. Harris and Beck, both of Salem, also paced the shorter race, the former getting third and the latter fifth. E. Miller of McKinley took fourth.

The tug-of-war event was held over until Saturday when a field of eight of the outstanding teams will compete for the $800 prize money on an elimination basis. Twenty of the 40 teams that entered are still in the running.

Synopsis of preceding instalments:

Fedor Staire, attache of the British Embassy in Paris, had been sentenced to be hanged for the murder of the wealthy Count Henri D'Arblaye, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Ronald Halkett was Fedor's best friend, and Ronald's wife Greta had been suspected. Fedor was engaged to Toni Wareham, Greta's younger sister and daughter of Lady Alice Wareham. Ronald's newspaper work demanded long hours and Greta was much in D'Arblaye's company. Toni asked Fedor to escort Greta home from a ball but she left with D'Arblaye. Staire followed and was outside D'Arblaye's apartment house when Greta came running out, saying she had shot D'Arblaye when he snatched her up and started to carry her into another room. She had left her handbag behind. Fedor sent her home in a taxi, went back, wiped all fingerprints from the pistol, got of the bag, but was hailed by the concierge as he was leaving. Staire gave his name. Before his arrest he coached Greta by phone to say she had not entered D'Arblaye's apartment. When the heartbroken Toni returned to Paris from London after Fedor's trial, she consented to pose for a portrait by Paul Ravel, famous artist, to please her worried mother. Gigi, Ravel's model for several noted paintings, almost convinced Ravel of her belief that Greta was the murderer. At a party in his studio, to which Ravel invited Toni and Greta, Gigi presented a play she herself wrote.

Instalment 27

The Italian violinist felt his lovely companion start so suddenly that he realized she had not been listening to one word he was saying, and preparing to be aggrieved, spoke reproachfully; then Greta turned on him with sudden fierceness.

"Be quiet—I am not interested—I wish to listen."

He was so amazed he was speechless, and the moment the words had passed her lips, Greta knew what a slip she had made; almost incoherently she turned to a man near her.

"Have you a cigarette? Ah, thank you," and began smoking so rapidly that the paper charred all down one side.

The man, flattered that the beauty of the evening had spoken to him, leaned towards her.

"Our little Gigi seems to have had some plot in her head," he said. "It grows quite exciting... a quarrel... she will go where she chooses... quite modern... but what have the friend and the sister to do with the story?"

Feverishly anxious to hide her growing anxiety, Greta answered almost at random.

"I suppose we shall soon hear—but why Hamlet? What had Hamlet to do with the story?"

Cool and level, Ravel's answer sounded unexpectedly on her other side.

"Hamlet used the players to unmask his father's murderer," he said. "It can hardly be possible that Gigi is following so illustrious an example. However, we shall soon know. She has been full of mystery."

Once again Greta realized that some perversity born of panic had driven her to ask the one question that should never have passed her lips, and at Ravel's words a damp coldness began to creep down the back of her neck.

Need to speak and failed, and suddenly Ravel leaned near to her.

"It can hardly be possible," he began again. "What motive could there be for so strange an idea?"

"Need there be a motive in any idea for a play?" She wondered whether her voice sounded as strange to him as it did to herself. Her fingers were clenched till the pointed nails were driven into the skin, her breath came in quick but silent gasps, yet she had wit enough to continue to watch the ridiculous players.

The friend and the young sister had played a love scene to the accompaniment of many encouraging remarks from the audience, following upon a quarrel between the husband, wife and third man; the scene was a ballroom, and suddenly the sister began imploring her lover to see that the elder woman came to no harm.

Toni, watching the scene with dilated eyes, realized that it was almost word for word the scene between herself and Fedor at the Opera; and Greta, unconscious of what she did, leaned forward, her figure tense, trying not to listen, yet unable to withdraw her attention, desperately aware that Ravel was watching her—and why?

Why should he take such heed of her? It was not flattering attention such as Nazzara bestowed. It was a different look, keen, watchful. Did he, could he suspect the truth?

Feverishly, while her eyes watched the absurd play, her brain worked, trying to reassure her that her fears were imaginary. For quite suddenly she was certain that Ravel did suspect; quite suddenly the appalling truth came home to her. This was a trap, set why or how, she could not conceive. Who could have known the truth? Why should this child of the gutter write this folly? What did she know? What had she said to Ravel? Oh, God...! Why would not words come...? Why would not words come...? Why did her tongue cleave dry to the roof of her mouth...? It was ridiculous—it was damnable. He was watching her, this man who had trapped her into this situation, watching to see if she betrayed herself by any sign of fear or uneasiness... and her hands were clenched and her fingers strained, and she could see once again D'Arblaye's huddled figure, and the pool of blood widening, ever widening upon the rug... It was no longer a play, the acting was crude, the words absurdly melodramatic; but crudities and melodrama alike meant nothing to her now. It was no longer a play she was watching, but the happenings of that dreadful night... she would have shrieked for the thing to cease, but her lips were dry and no sound would come from her throat.

Scene by scene, detail by detail, those happenings played themselves out... the woman on the stage alone in the man's house... the passionate scene between them... she heard nothing of the audience's wit and ribaldry, saw nothing of the actors' absurdities... did not even see the wonder growing on the faces of her two companions, or the intent watchfulness of Ravel as he observed her.

A dagger instead of a revolver... two gallants, attired in odd draperies borrowed from an adjoining studio, instead of a Commissioner of Police... a painted board hoisted up with the legend: "Dungeon in the Bastille," painted upon it instead of Dartmoor... and Toni's leap down from her seat, and Ravel's swift stride across the room, and her own shriek ringing in her ears: "I killed him! I killed him—oh, my God—I killed him!" before the roaring darkness closed over her head.

The cold, clinging dampness of fog lay over the western counties, a white mist, blanketing sound, penetrating the very marrow of the bones with deathly chill.

The giant prison walls of Princetown jail rose with startling suddenness in the mist, Gaunt, starkly ugly—even more so than usual—the prison gave an impression of desolation so profound that the heart stood still in dismay.

The crunch of men's boots on the hard gravel of the road—an even, heavy tramp lacking the spring of a battalion's movement, yet hardly less measured and defined—was the only sound that broke the unearthly stillness.

Walking fourth in line, his attire no whit different from the men behind and in front of him, but his shoulders still flat and erect, and the heavy convict's boots not yet hiding the easy lithe step, Fedor Staire approached the end of another day. But inwardly, already the terrible monotony of prison routine had got him within its stranglehold, and although only two months had passed since his arrival at Dartmoor, Fedor had endured a hundred years of agony.

Physically, he was in fine condition, since his health, always excellent, was maintained by the wonderful air and the hard and regular exercise; mentally, he remained in a state that for the most part held all emotion and sentiment feeling in abeyance, waiting, perhaps, for the unguarded moment, the waking instant, to break forth and sweep him on its flood. He was unpopular still, for the mere reason that he was unmistakably of a different breed from the men about him, but such unpopularity troubled him not at all. The loss which actually meant most to him during these weeks had been the absence of all books, and the soul-deadening monotony of the labor—two month's work weeks out of what? A lifetime—eight weeks—and before him twenty-five winters of cruel winds and blanketing white fogs, twenty-five springs leading to what? Hope? Happiness? Achievement? Could even character be achieved in this grim house of punishment? What sort of man would he be at the end of those years? Could he endure or would he be broken... what would confront him when in the far-distant future he might once more step on the road, a free man? Comparative youth and the fine promise of his maturity would be gone forever—it would be an elderly man who, if ever, would once walk at liberty among his fellows—his opportunities gone forever, the prison mark deep upon him, the iron in his soul.

Fedor averted a little as he walked, and the sharp reprimand of a warder brought him up with a jerk. Once within the great walls the cold seemed intensified. He shivered as the door of his cell was closed behind him, shivered and longed for the merciful darkness of the night that hid the pain and the weakness of the flesh in its sombre mantle... and at night only he dared to think of the world that had been his... of his work... his friends... of Toni... slow tears gathered and forced themselves between his closed lids, and he brushed them roughly away as he bent over his work... tears had no place until the darkness of midnight closed over him. He had always thought himself well disciplined, had accepted his complete mastery over emotion as the natural habit of his race... but he had learned in these weeks that life can so handle even the strongest man that he becomes as pitifully helpless as a little child, before the torment of memory.

Always Toni's face came before him as he had seen it last in that brief moment of utter silence in the court, when the dread verdict had been given.

"The Court doth ordain you to be taken from hence to the place from which you came... and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

She had half-risen and looked across at him, lips parting as if to cry out, eyes almost black with intensity of feeling, and then at that moment she had smiled at him... he knew what it had cost her, and the memory of that gallant smile bidding him to take courage was the one precious thing he took into the darkness... Toni... Toni.

A harsh voice broke in upon the dream. A warder came along the passage. The Governor had sent a message—number 23 wanted... The next moment Fedor was following him to the Governor's apartments. Colonel Storm was a fine-looking man of middle age, with a good mouth and keen, stern eyes. Fedor's own gaze, as direct, as stern, met and held, and Colonel Storm—in whom twelve years of prison governorship had not quite killed all heart—felt a thrill of genuine emotion as he realized what he had to tell this man. Yet it was not easy to begin, and for a second he paused before he spoke.

"I have sent for you," he began, "because a certain communication has come to me from Headquarters that should, I consider, be made known to you."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Recent a substitute. ©1931, Carter Medicine Company.

Law Rights a Wrong

Society's wrong to Eugene Piantkowski (left) became right when Judge Philip Finnegan, of Chicago, ordered him freed from serving a sentence in Pontiac Reformatory for a crime he didn't commit. The youth is shown thanking Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach (right) and Captain Joseph Goldberg for their assistance in helping him prove his innocence following conviction.

receive a free pardon from His Majesty."

Fedor uttered a sound, half-exclamation, half-gasp; the blood receded from his face and flinging out his hands, he groped for support... then he straightened up, breathing in deep, unsteady gasps.

"You say—a confession—does that mean the—the person who has confessed is to be tried?" Storm dismissed the two warders. "Mr. Staire," he said, "the woman who has confessed to the murder of Count D'Arblaye was taken before a judge d'instinction. It was proved that the deceased attempted to assault her, and the jury acquitted her on a plea of self-defense, a day or two ago. I need not tell you the relief and pleasure I feel in being able to give you such news. Will you wait here until I return?"

WEST BRANCH, Ia.—A miniature reproduction of Hoover Dam, commonly called Boulder Dam, on the Colorado river, has been constructed in the rock garden of Milton G. Randall here. The model, made of rocks, was copied from a picture of the dam in a magazine. Randall, distant relative of the president, gathered the rock from near the boyhood home of Mr. Hoover here.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves
It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonard's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Lease Drug Co., and Broadway Lease Drug Store, says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back. Adv

UNTOLD TORTURE FROM ECZEMA

Ended quickly by Resinol

"For three months I suffered torture from 'weeping eczema,' and the many different remedies I tried only gave me slight temporary relief. Finally I decided to try Resinol Ointment. After the first application the itching was relieved and after three days' treatment the whole affected surface was entirely healed. In view of what I had suffered it seems nothing short of a miracle." (Signed)—Ella Mookley, 61 Mr. Auburn St., Watertown, Mass.

The quickness with which Resinol acts in relieving eczema, chafing, rashes, piles, sores, etc., is amazing. Why don't you try it? At all druggists. For free sample, write Resinol, Dept. 87, Baltimore, Md.

COLUMBIANA, July 30.—Columbian stores, business houses, shops, etc., will be closed all day next Wednesday, Aug. 5, while the annual community picnic is being held at Myers Lake park, Canton. Last year nearly 2,000 persons attended; this year it is expected that even more will go. Transportation will be provided for those wishing it. Chairman William B. Miller has appointed committees to assist in the arrangements, and police in Salem and Alliance will again give right-of-way to through traffic so there will be no delay by stop lights. About 300 cars were in the parade last year, others going later in the day.

There will be free admission to the park; 10 free amusement tickets to each child; five cent tickets for adults on any "ride"; free motion pictures; free dance admission for ladies in the evening; and a fireworks display at night. Games and contests will be staged late in the afternoon. Anyone wishing transportation should apply to one of the church committees.
